Baptism is a symbolic ceremony or act that many Christians do either as a baby or as an adult, to show that they are now part of the Christian family. Water is used within the ceremony because of its different symbolic meanings.

What I want you to do...

Considering all you have learned about water - Why do you think Christians use water to baptise babies and adults?

On the class page under the RE tab I would like you to try to answer the questions above. This is your opinion; so it doesn't matter if you think that's not right, it is your ideas.
